Weather

Summer is officially here. It was unofficially here when 12 of the first 17 days in June broke 90 degrees, but now that the summer solstice has passed, we can finally say that it is summer.

As a whole, it's been a quiet summer on the storm front in Sioux Center. With only a few passing storms thus far, we've measured just 9.71" of rain. To add a little context, from 2001-2019, Sioux Center averaged 14.98" of measurable rain through the end of June. After a few years with heavier rainfall, we've definitely seen less rain in 2020.

But come rain or sunshine, cloudy or clear skies, we'll always be grateful. As Psalm 107:1 says, "Give thanks to the LORD, for He is good; His love endures forever." So in these times of doubt and uncertainty, that's what we'll continue to do. Join us as we strive to praise God and serve His Kingdom with each breath we're given.

Chizzy's Corner

I hope you're all doing well (or the best that you can be doing given current events). As we continue to navigate through 2020 and the unforeseen challenges that lie ahead, we're thankful for your continued listening and support. We hope that the meaning and message behind the music and programming on KDCR has a positive influence on your life. You'll always be in our thoughts and prayers.

Oh, and with July right around the corner, Happy Independence Day!
